Supervised Learning and Unsupervised Learning are Two Different Machine Learning Approaches

They differ in how they use data
Supervised Learning

Unsupervised Learning

Supervised learning is based on human-labeled data and learns to mimic human judgment.

It is a relatively simple machine learning method.

Unsupervised learning finds patterns and insights from large amounts of unlabeled data.

It is more computationally complex.